

Outdoor Addicts

Milton Keynes truly is...
"The city in the country"

It boasts over 4,500 acres of parkland, rivers, lakes and woodland including over 20 million trees. When you visit Milton Keynes you can't help but notice the wide open green spaces and the huge number of wooded areas that help the city stand out from the crowd.

- Parks, lakes and green spaces cover 20% of the city
- Campbell Park is the city's very own Central Park close to the city centre, and provides a green oasis for residents and visitors alike
- Willen Lake is a world of extremes, with the serene Peace Pagoda and masses of wild birds through to the crazy world of cable-tow wakeboarding and dragon-boat racing
- The ancient woods of Shenley, Howe Park and Linford transport you to a wealth of wild flowers, animals and tranquil woodland walks
- The River Ouzel winds its way through the city past traditional country pubs and the remains of a medieval community
- The Grand Union Canal forms a living, breathing artery through the very heart of the city, allowing you to slow down your pace of life on a narrowboat or cruiser

The city won the Britain in Bloom award in 2007 for its outstanding parkland and landscaping.

Milton Keynes offers visitors wonderful woodland walks, peaceful parks, quiet riverside rambles and thrilling lake activities all in one great destination.
